A student-made television show about a girl and a robot.

Mabel & Switch is a family-friendly science-fiction show about a young girl and her robot buddy. The show has been made by young people, mentored by industry professionals. The team at One Day Studios is made up of animators, artists, film-makers and musicians who all work in film and creative industries.

Students watch the 15 minute pilot episode and a short documentary that shows young people aged from 10 to 23 working behind the scenes on the production.

The One Day Studios team will bring props and costumes, including one of the robot stars, and will conduct a Q&A session after the screening, followed by a fun and engaging workshop to gain some real backstage skills themselves. Students will gain insights into the way films and television shows are made, including electronic music composition, costume design, script writing, miniatures and editing. Workshop content is fun and engaging while being matched to curriculum areas, including media and visual communication.

- Option One - Workshop for Primary aged students: Create your own robot character from the Mabel & Switch universe out of recycled materials and motors.
- Option Two - Workshop for lower Secondary students: Miniature building. Learn some of the tools and techniques for making miniatures for film.
- Option Three - Workshop for upper Secondary students: Miniature building and 3D scanning. Build a miniature set together and scan it with a 3D scanner. Learn about how 3D scans may be exported for use in gaming, Augmented Reality or 3D printing.
